Mrs. Johnson and Crank in Runoff

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Returns from the Democratic primary were certified Monday by Secretary of State Kelly Bryant and placed Mrs. Virginia Johnson in next Tuesday's runoff primary with Marion Crank.

The returns handed Bryant by J. P. "Sonny" Lybrand, executive secretary of the state Democratic party, gave Mrs. Johnson 86,038 votes to Ted Boswell's 85,629.

Bill Alexander of Osceola will meet Jack Files of Hunter in the 1st Congressional District runoff. Files edged Dr. Ralph R. Ratton of Paragould for the runoff spot by 114 votes.

Lybrand told a news conference the formal notice of county certification had not been received in the mail from Lee, Logan and Stone Counties, but returns were taken by telephone from officials sworn to give the certified results. Formal notices were received from the other 72 counties.

While the Democratic party returns gave Mrs. Johnson a 409-vote edge over Boswell, The Associated Press' unofficial survey of certified returns over the weekend put her lead at 317 votes.

Lybrand said the certified totals corresponded in most cases with the AP's unofficial check, but there were a few "small, insignificant variances."

"We've been working all weekend," Lybrand said. "Our office secretary worked night and day. Under the circumstances (close contests for runoff positions), we went as fast as we could."

The certification was four days earlier than in 1966 when certification showed that James Pilkinton of Hope had won a runoff position in the lieutenant governor's race. Unofficial returns had shown Joe Basore of Cherokee Village winning the runoff position.

The certified returns Monday gave Crank 106,092 votes, Bruce Bennett of El Dorado 65,095, Frank Whitbeck of Little Rock 61,758 and Clyde Byrd of Little Rock 10,265.

In the 1st District, Alexander received 33,480 certified votes, Files 12,023, Ratton 11,909, Mayor Clyde Andrews of Marianna 10,616, Henry Akins of Wynne 7,337, Lee Ward of Jonesboro 7,290, Eugene Ridgeway of Newport 4,560 and Carroll "Bull" Durham of Wynne 678.

On the Road Back No Magician Can Equal the Feats of Memory

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is the master magician. Its trickery is on a vaster scale, and it is often more consoling than simply entertaining. By a simple wave of its wand it can recreate a vanished world, and let us dwell again with those we knew before. Or, at least, it permits us to make a brief affectionate visit to them as often as we wish.

No other magician on earth can perform such a feat. Through memory alone are we enabled to live our lives not just once but a thousand times, over and over, whenever we choose.

And you've got quite a choice of memories yourself if you can look back and remember when: The wonderful smell of home-made bread baking in the kitchen stove was an orgy of the nose.

The neighborhood hero in spring wasn't the guy who saw the first robin. It was the kid who stubbed a barefoot toe early and therefore got to wear the first bandage.

Crime Bank Is Greatest Advance in Enforcement of Law in 25 Years

Violence in Cities Leaves Four Dead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Four men, including a Detroit police sergeant, were killed Monday in two separate shooting incidents involving policemen and civilians.

In Los Angeles, two seriously wounded policemen killed three of four men in a brief but furious gunbattle after the officers began a routine check of a car.

In Detroit a gunfight that apparently began as a domestic quarrel climaxed in the death of the sergeant and the wounding of two other policemen and two civilians.

The shooting occurred in Jeffries Homes, a low-income housing project in a predominantly Negro neighborhood but Police Commissioner Johannes Spreen said that the incident was not racial.

Authorities in York, Pa., restored order after a fresh outbreak of violence and vandalism Monday night. Policemen with dogs patrolled near a predominantly Negro area troubled for two nights and a day.

The violence occurred near Hoffman's meat store, center of the unrest. Police said the store was looted Monday afternoon and fires were set in a storage garage behind the market Monday night.

California alone has 300 police departments which feed information to one terminal. New York state has about 140 agencies which run their data through two relay points.

The FBI said police in the smallest communities may benefit from the computer. All they need is a teletype unit and somebody who can type. Whatever information they have, or require, is sent by teletype message to the nearest terminal, and an answer from the bank can be flashed back in seconds.

The FBI envisions more uses for the computer. Already being researched is a system whereby fingerprints could be identified at the push of a button.

And a boon to banks and those companies dealing with stocks and bonds would be an instant identification process of such serialized paper assets.

"We can foresee the day when a bank teller, for instance, would be able to have identified as legal or stolen any money order or draft presented to her over the counter for cash—and in only as long as it takes for the customer to sign his name," the FBI official said.

Hideout of Enemy Hit by Bombs

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — U.S. air cavalrymen combed a Viet Cong hideout in mangrove swamps 23 miles west of Saigon today, seeking an enemy force that air strikes, artillery and helicopter gunships had pounded through the night.

Early reports said the troops of the 1st Air Cavalry Division found 12 enemy bodies in a grave, but the toll was expected to rise as the sweep progressed, American officers said.

"Intelligence reports said a Viet Cong battalion—perhaps as many as 300 men—were in the hideout when the helicopters landed nearly 1,000 Americans late Monday three miles from the Oriental River, a key infiltration corridor from Cambodia.

The U.S. Command said the air cavalrymen cordoned off the area and pushed the enemy force toward the river until contact was broken about 4 a.m.

Two Americans were reported killed and 10 wounded, all in the initial assault when helicopters landing the air cavalrymen came under heavy machinegun fire. One observation helicopter

Nixon, Backers Look to Late Switches for a Quick Nomination

By JACK BELL
AP Political Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's backers, pegging their first ballot presidential nomination hopes on late roll call switches, have been told they probably won't get any help from Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes, a key favorite son.

Also, the repeated contention by Nixon spokesmen that they are more than 30 votes over the 667 needed for nomination when the balloting starts Wednesday may have sprung a leak.

Charles McWhorter, a Nixon floor manager, said "We're going to win it on the first ballot. You watch those switches at the end of the roll call. They'll put us over."

Implicit in this statement was the acknowledgement that despite a drive to tip over favorite sons and to commit unpledged delegates, Nixon has not been able to lay his hands on the prize-winning total.

Told of McWhorter's estimate, Rhodes said he is holding fast to his noncommitted stance as a favorite son, controlling the 58-vote Ohio delegation.

But he implied strongly that Nixon will have to look elsewhere for any needed margin at the end of the first count.

"Let's see what they can do on the first ballot," Rhodes said. "Then we will figure out what we will do."

Asked if he still would be running as a favorite son on the second ballot, Rhodes said, "That's right."

The Ohio governor's seeming assurance that he will hold fast against a Nixon blitz was even more heartening to the camp of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, the former vice president's chief rival, than California Gov. Ronald Reagan's announcement that he now is an active candidate for the top nomination.

Reagan's entry into active competition was hailed by Rockefeller and his supporters as likely to cut into Nixon's first ballot strength.

But Rhodes is a vital cog in any effort to assemble enough favorite son and uncommitted votes to keep Nixon from grabbing the prize early.

Rockefeller and Reagan's need for Rhodes was emphasized by Nixon, BACKERS (on page two)

Youth Charged After Wild Chase

At times during the chase the speed was fantastic as officers tried to halt the youth. The boy was charged with driving while intoxicated by City Officers but was turned over the the Sheriff where a charged of car theft will probably be filed.

Two Steel Firms to Hold Line

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the major steel-priceboosters have agreed to hold the line on some defense items, but the government is still probing for the first significant crack in a nearly solid industry front.

Republic, No. 3 producer, and Armco, No. 5, assured the Pentagon Monday they would not raise prices on military barbed wire and certain steel used in shell casings.

But both firms quickly noted they hadn't raised the prices on the items—accounting for less than 25 per cent of the Pentagon purchases—in the first place.

Despite the pledges from Armco and Republic and continued escalation of government pressure on the industry, there appeared to be little if any net gain for either side.

There was no movement from Bethlehem Steel, the No. 2 producer which sparked the current war of nerves by hiking prices on all basic mill products nearly 5 per cent last week.

The Bethlehem increase followed industry agreement with the United Steelworkers on a three-year labor contract expected to cost 6 per cent a year.

Convention Picture Is Clearer

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richard M. Nixon said today he will not attempt to raid the critical favorite-son delegations of California, Ohio and Michigan in his quest for the Republican presidential nomination.

The front-running candidate said he would keep hands off the big delegations in the interest of party unity, but his statement clearly indicated he has been unable to crack the uncommitted stance of Govs. James A. Rhodes of Ohio and George Romney of Michigan.

The strategy of Nixon's chief rivals for the nomination, Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California, hinges on keeping the major delegations of Ohio, Michigan and California out of Nixon's camp.

Holding a news conference at his headquarters hotel, Nixon predicted he would win the nomination on an early ballot. If he does, he said, he may travel to the Soviet Union this month.

Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, who backed Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York when he was not a candidate, has now come out for Richard M. Nixon.

William Miller is working energetically for Rockefeller four years after he fought Rockefeller so hard he became the vice presidential candidate behind Barry Goldwater, who is now for Nixon, the man he shrugged off in 1964 as becoming "more and more like Harold Stassen every day." More consistent than anybody, Stassen is now for Stassen in a fiery campaign which has won the full, uncompromising support of his nephew, who support was not visible in 1956 when Stassen thought the next vice president should be Christian Herter, who then delivered the nominating speech for Richard Nixon as vice president. Will Chamberlain was neutral that year.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made his position clear last night. He is not a candidate for president, said the general, who in 1964 had a conversation with William Scranton of Pennsylvania, which persuaded Scranton that the ex-president was for him until Ike announced it was his life-long policy not to support candidates before they were nominated. Gen. Eisenhower has since declared for Nixon, some days before anybody was nominated but several weeks after it was announced that his grandson, David Eisenhower, was engaged to be married to Julie Nixon, whose sense of commitment about Warren Camall Harding has always remained murky to most historians. So was Will Chamberlain's. John Wayne was neutral that year.

Meanwhile, this year, today, in fact, Richard Nixon, the New York lawyer, has a press conference scheduled six years after he was defeated for governor of California, when he was a California lawyer and told the press, "You won't have Dick sized when Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, who may put Nixon's name in nomination, quit as a favorite son. Although Rockefeller picked up 14 of the Maryland votes to 12 for Nixon, Agnew's action gave the former vice president's effort a strong psychological lift.

Ohio's delegation is pledged to give Rhodes 56 first-ballot votes with two going to Nixon.

McWhorter's confidence that there will be breaks toward Nixon if he is close to nomination on the first roll call was underscored by Connecticut's 16-vote delegation.

The group has 11 votes for Rockefeller and only three for Nixon, with two uncommitted. But the delegation has agreed to leave the door open for a possible jump to Nixon if he looks to be on the way to victory.

Gov. David F. Cargo of New Mexico said in an interview he will be watching the first ballot closely since his delegation would like to be in on the selection of a winner. New Mexico is about evenly divided between Nixon and Reagan.

An Associated Press check of publicly committed and pledged delegates show Nixon with 596, Rockefeller 259, Reagan 187, favorite sons 195—including those of Rhodes ad Gov. George Romney of Michigan—and uncommitted 126.

Rockefeller professed to see continued erosion in Nixon delegate strength. But it was apparent that the few delegates who were leaving Nixon mostly were turning to Reagan and not the New York governor.

What Nixon was losing in this manner, however, he was more than offsetting in gains elsewhere.

While all of this maneuvering was going on, the convention prepared in its second day to hear the reading of a 13,000 word platform which seemed likely to be accepted quickly.

The platform features a moderate plank on Vietnam calling for the gradual withdrawal of America forces from the war to be replaced by South Vietnamese troops. This was seen as written to allow any of the potential candidates to be comfortable with it.

The platform draft also condemns violence and crime but pledged to work to alleviate the social and economic conditions that it said often set off these forces.

Educational Figure Dies

Voters Warned of Return to Old Crowd

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Mrs. Virginia Johnson said Monday night the nomination of Marion Crank in their Democratic gubernatorial runoff primary next Tuesday would be a return "to the old crowd, to the old days."

Mrs. Johnson said in a five-minute television speech that Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's "one-man Republican party" captured the governor's office in 1966 because of the long tenure of former Gov. Orval Faubus.

When any administration is in office too long "there is less desire to serve and more inclination to be served," she said. "Selfishness and dishonesty are frequently some of the by-products," she said. "The net result is that people first get 'fed up,' then disillusioned, and finally angry enough — with righteous wrath — to bring about a change."

"The change has not been good, but the fact does not warrant a return to the old crowd, to the old days."

Mrs. Johnson, thanking her supporters in the first primary, said she hoped "time and circumstance" would prove they made the right choice.

She said it was important that all Arkansians join in a program to raise per capita income by increasing the state's collective wealth through the right approach to home-owned industry and tourism.

"These two activities, if properly conceived and executed, will provide most of the money we need to finance all of the other improved state services all of us want."

Mrs. Johnson said young persons' ambition to serve in government had undergone "methodical political destruction" in the last 14 years.

"Our refusal to use these young and flexible minds for the progress of Arkansas has resulted in an economic loss which I believe will plague us for a generation," she said. "Please, let us not make that mistake again."

Mrs. Johnson and her husband, Jim, attended the funeral of a friend at Heber Springs Monday afternoon. Later in the day, she shook hands with voters at a Little Rock shopping center.

—especially on big tonnage sheet and strip—other companies could be expected to do likewise to remain competitive, as they did in 1966.

Meanwhile, Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz told a news conference: "There is real basis for concern over the level at which wages and prices are chasing each other." He said he favors "the exercise of private restraint."

Rep. Joe L. Evans, D-Tenn., ordered the staff of his House Small Business Committee to study the increases.

Chairman Paul Rand Dixon of the Federal Trade Commission postponed a scheduled hearing on pricing practices until midweek so he could discuss the situation with congressmen.

The Pentagon, the General Services Administration and the Department of Housing and Urban Development have all issued orders to shift buying wherever possible to firms which have held back from a general increase.

But the pressure of the marketplace on producers is all since hardly anybody needs steel right now. Users are working off a twice-normal inventory — built up as protection against the strike that never came.

One industry source said the government—as well as the industry—is still trying to unravel the jumbled mass of price revisions that followed a new contract with the United Steelworkers Union last week.

"It's a problem in semantics," said an industry source. "Whether they're called selective increases or general increases depends on how you define them."

President Johnson called "across-the-board" increases "unreasonable." He exempted "selected increases" from his criticism and aides have indicated some selective increases would be acceptable.

Secret Spy Satellite Launched

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — In the first secret satellite launching here in five years, the Air Force today rocketed a new experimental spy-in-the-sky payload on a mission that could produce a vast amount of intelligence data about Russia, Red China, Southeast Asia and other potential trouble spots.

was shot down, but the pilot escaped.

The American battle along the Oriental River was one of two actions reported on the Plain of Reeds, a watery stretch frequently used by the Viet Cong for staging attacks and an area in which the enemy controls the scattered hamlets.

South Vietnamese forces fought Monday with other enemy soldiers in the lower half of the plain along the Cambodian border 74 miles west of Saigon. The government troops reported killing 24 Viet Cong and destroying 100 sampans in a series of fire fights, while South Vietnamese losses were put at seven killed and 16 wounded.

Intelligence officers say that any attack on Saigon from the Plain of Reeds would have to come before September. By then monsoon flood waters will make the area passable only by boat, and the officers say the flotilla required to move a large force would be spotted easily.

Meanwhile, Viet Cong gunners struck close to the capital during the night, slamming about 20 mortar rounds into a government district headquarters just outside the southern city limits. Military spokesmen said two trucks were damaged, but no casualties were reported.

Government officials in Saigon reported a marked increase in the last four months due to the general mobilization which began in late May and to increased voluntary enlistments.

The officials said the regular forces—army, marines, air force and navy—jumped from 332,000 men at the end of March to 395,000, a 19 per cent rise. They said militia forces increased from 307,600 to 360,000, an increase of 17 per cent.

However, the combined total of 755,000 was 10,000 less than the total number of men which President Johnson and President Nguyen Van Thieu in their Honolulu communique said were in the South Vietnamese forces in June.

Without cooperation with the countries of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, Czechoslovakia would not have permanent assurance of raw materials and food and also would not have a sure market for its products," he said. The council is the Soviet bloc's common market.

Cernik did not elaborate on his statement that cooperation within the economic council must have a "new quality."

A towering Atlas-Agena rocket thundered away from Cape Kennedy at 7:08 a.m. EDT to propel the super-spy, nicknamed "Spook Bird" by some officials, toward a high-altitude orbit from which its instruments could take a comprehensive look at wide areas of the globe.

Reversing a long-time press policy, the Air Force did not inform newsmen in advance of the launching—although many knew about it. Some officials said the orders to cloak the launch in secrecy originated with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the State Department.

Both organizations reportedly were concerned that information about the satellite would be upsetting to certain nations during a delicate period in international relations.

However, it's hard to hide something as big and as powerful as an Atlas-Agena rumbling off a launch pad. The rocket is 11 stories tall.

Farmers Told of Control of Marketing

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Intensified political action and some control of the marketing process are vital to the protection of agriculture, Arkansas Farm Bureau President Harold F. Ohlendorf said Monday night.

Ohlendorf, addressing some 300 farmers and their wives at the opening session of the three-day farm bureau conference here, said the biggest problem in Arkansas "is net farm income."

"Farmers remain in a precarious position as long as the price of their product is determined fully by the buyer in the market place," he said.

He stressed that farmers must develop new market processes over which they can exercise some control in order to have a voice in the process of their product.

Because farmers are a minority, they must protect themselves in the political arena by taking a more active role in the selection of the political candidates, Ohlendorf said.

He also urged farmers to encourage agriculture-oriented people in their areas to file as delegates to the proposed constitutional convention.

"We don't know whether a constitutional convention will be voted by the people," Ohlendorf said. "But we do know that if approved, the 100 delegates will be very influential."

"A new constitution could be written in such a manner that rural people would have little authority in the future of running our government," he said.

Bookkeeping Blamed for Program Lag

By BEN F. MEYER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee today blamed sloppy bookkeeping and bad planning with hobbling the Alliance for Progress program of Latin American aid.

A report by the House Committee on Government Operations said there's a feeling in Brazil—and possibly a dozen other countries—that "the lid would blow off" unless land reform is swift.

Yet a shortage of auditors—and the inability of American auditors to communicate with native subordinates—is permitting Agency for International Development funds to be frittered away unnoticed, the report said.

The report was prepared after a subcommittee headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., toured Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Panama, Peru and Venezuela last January.

As an example of what it said shoddy auditing can do, the committee cited a program, started in 1963, to build 1,000 classrooms, 4 normal schools, 3 supervisory centers, 10 industrial workshops and 10 medical-dental units in Piaui, northeast Brazil.

The report said that three years later the first audit of the project was made. Seventy percent of available money had already been spent, only 18 percent of the planned classrooms had even been started and "most of the completed schools were already in need of maintenance," the report said. None of the industrial or medical centers had been started.

The report said "... millions of dollars have been wasted on AID projects because of poor planning and faulty estimates." The U.S. has contributed $9.9 billion to the alliance as of last year.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television techniques may encompass the sprawling activities of a political convention, but those early Republican sessions on Monday, mostly ceremonies and speeches, made for sluggish viewing.

CBS and NBC covered the opening day from the first gavel. Since the delegates, milling around the convention floor, paid little or no attention to the stream of speakers during the morning session, it was not surprising that television ignored them thoroughly.

CBS' Walter Cronkite and NBC's Chet Huntley and David Brinkley calmly controlled things from their lofty perches. Top network correspondents, looking like grounded astronauts with their power-packed microphones and earphones, scurried among the delegations asking leaders over and over who they thought would be the presidential winner.

It was all pretty inconclusive since the responses were either sales pitches for one or another candidate or bland expressions of ignorance about trends.

As the day wore on, the story was considerably enlivened by Gov. Ronald Reagan's announcement of candidacy. And the arrival ceremonies in Miami Beach for Richard Nixon gave the networks a chance to use helicopters to get pictures.

The Nixon dancing girls, welcoming crowds and balloons also gave CBS' Eric Sevareid a chance during his analysis to suggest his feeling of weariness about the whole big show. "More artificial than ever," he said.

During the evening sessions, with the networks paying more attention to the speakers, there was more of the usual oratory, but it was sparked considerably by the telephoned address of convalescent Dwight D. Eisenhower from Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

If television is devoting a lot of expensive time to the convention, the presidential hopefuls and the delegates are paying a lot of attention to the medium. Just about everyone except Nixon was available for interviews.

Generally, the coverage by the veterans of television was smooth. Occasionally the floor reporters had trouble with their electronic equipment. As far as the convention entertainment was concerned, it may have been great for the hall, but it didn't exactly light up the TV sets.

CBS announced what has been rumored for so long: Starting in September 1969, it will add Merv Griffin and his talk-variety show to its week night schedule. Griffin will start competing, with almost the exact format, with Johnny Carson on NBC and Joey Bishop on ABC.

CBS, despite reports for several seasons that it would launch a late evening show, held out because repeated surveys indicated its affiliated stations were happy showing old movies. But now, with the supply of old pictures practically exhausted, the network has joined the talk parade.

'Our Gang' Member Is a Charmer

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — In the 1920s she was the blonde little darling of the original "Our Gang" silent movies. Today she's the darling of a new gang—Tau Delta Phi fraternity at Pennsylvania State University, and the only house mother ever initiated as a "brother" into the group. She's still a real charmer.

When she was in pictures at age 3 to 7 she was the lovable Darla, the poor-little-rich gal who romped around with Spanky, Freckles, Farnia, Alfalfa and Spot, the dog. She didn't make it into talkies because, she says: "I just got too old for the part."

Nor she's Mrs. Shirley Cherrington, at 51 just plain "Moms" to the gang at the frat house. But their Darla, too. "I think being a house mother at a fraternity house is the most rewarding job a middle-aged woman can have," she says smoothing back hair that now is mostly gray.

Opening lead—♠ 4 by East

The United States Team—Bill Root, Alvin Roth and Edgar Kaplan of New York and Arthur Robinson, Robert Jordan and Norman Kay of Philadelphia—deserve great credit for their magnificent performance in the World Bridge Olympiad at Deauville.

They reached the finals and gave the great Italian team a fight all the way. Today's hand shows Kaplan and Kay stopping at three no-trump and making five. They use a 20 to 21-point plus two no-trump opening and Kay opened with that bid. Kaplan looked at his 10 points and 4-3-3 distribution and decided to settle for the sure game. A club was opened and Norman took the first 11 tricks.

The bidding at the other table being the Neapolitan system (used by Forquet and Garozzo) is shown here. The club opening indicated at least 17 high card points and the no-trump response showed either one ace and two kings or two aces.

South's two no-trump rebid told of the equivalent of a two no-trump opening. North's bid of three clubs signaled that he had a four-card major suit somewhere. South's three diamonds showed two such majors; North's three hearts that he held four hearts and the rest of the bidding appears to show that even the Italians can get confused by their own bidding methods.

A spade was opened by East and the Americans just waited for their two diamond tricks.

The contract wasn't too bad. If West held the ace of diamonds it would make as long as hearts broke 3-2, and might even make if hearts broke 4-1, so it could be described as a 40 per cent chance for slam.

Inventive housewives are getting beauty duty from their dishwashers. The idea is to wash your face with soap and spread cream over it while the machine runs through a load of dishes; then open the door just at the end of the cycle and let the cloud of steam rush up over your face. Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help Us! this newspaper.

MIDSUMMER "NOTHING BUT THE GOOD" COLUMN

Dear Readers: For ten years now, I've printed a Christmas "Nothing But The Good" column—and I've sprinkled my trouble-free letters around quite generously in between times. Even so, they pile up.

Here's an extra dividend of upbeat mail. I hope you readers are the type who DO care when the train runs on time.—H.

Dear Helen: I'd like to tell "Concerned Teen" and others that people ARE involved. You just don't hear about the "rescuers" nearly so much.

This spring I was attacked on the beach. I'd heard so much about people turning away that I hadn't much hope. But one scream, and everyone came running. They took their lives in their hands to help a stranger. When I tried to thank one of them, she said, "Anyone would have done the same." I believe she was right too.—GRATEFUL, AGE 17

Dear Helen: With all the talk about other kids' parents being the best, I feel it is my duty to put the facts straight. Mine are way out in front. We took a vote on it last night.

I'm 16 and have a twin sister. Most people think we're just good friends because we get along so well. Our folks treat us as individuals.

We can talk to and tell our parents anything without them getting mad or yelling. They give advice if you ask, but aren't insulted if you don't follow it. They really understand the problems that seem so important to us now.

When I feel I'm old enough to do a thing they say "No" to, my older brother is called in. He's a great kid, even if he doesn't let me do everything I want.

I can't think when my folks have forced me to do something I didn't want to do, and in return I try not to do the things I know will upset them.

I have tried to explain the love in my family but I guess seeing is believing. Yes, we even love our younger sister. She isn't as bad as you might imagine, if you listen to her side. I only hope I can raise my children as well as my parents did.—C.P. SMITH

Dear Helen: I've been meaning to write to you about people in restaurants. I'm a waitress and believe me, out of all the people I've served, teen-agers are the most understanding, kind, and most polite.

We really do our best for everyone, and we seldom get a feeling of appreciation except from those great teen-agers. It's amazing how discourteous some adults can be!—WAITRESS

Dear Helen: My parents are the greatest! Mom and I have our fights, but we also have our lab shopping trips, morning-after chats over coffee, and stupid jokes. Dad is strict, but all my friends say he's wonderful.

I didn't just happen to get a family like this: It took work! They respect my privacy because I try to respect theirs. Mom is going to let me get out of cleaning my room Saturday because I OFFERED to do the ironing the other night, and did it. A little thoughtfulness makes it all so easy. It doesn't take much to accept a "No" without an argument, to offer to do something around the house, or to put up with your kid brother for an afternoon. (He's a big help when you're trying to perfect your tennis.)

One generation can't successfully close the gap. But, with both sides going half way, it can be done. This means an extra "Thank you" for a tiny favor, a smile when you're in a lousy mood, and parents who are friends, rather than fiends.

Try it, it really works! And having a family that is fun to be with is well worth the extra effort.—15 AND HAPPY

Dear Helen: This is in reply to the mother who signed herself, "MOURNING DEAD CHIVALRY."

Although things have changed, there are still plenty of girls who are "courted" in the old fashioned way. I am one of them. My boyfriend sends me flowers, treats me like a lady and has written some pretty romantic things. He hasn't serenaded me outside my window, but maybe that's because I wouldn't be able to hear him over the air conditioner.

I'd give any guy the boot who said, "Hi stupid, let's split."—D.W.

Pink Stands Up

When the lights are low, you want to look your best, so here is a tip for make-up. Make your foundation a trifle pinker than your daytime shade, with lipstick in light, true red or clear pink. The warmth of pink shades will stand up under harsh, neon lights which otherwise tend to harden the features and give you a washed-out look.

Fans all over America wept when it was disclosed that Lou Gehrig, the "Iron Horse" of the New York Yankees, had an incurable illness and could never play baseball again.

Theaters gave away free dinernware to lure people into the movies.

There were no wonder drugs. Few people took any more medicine than they had to, because most medicines smelled bad and tasted worse.

Pappas Does Fights Last Night It All for Atlanta

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Relief has become the means to an end for many of today's pitchers, but self-support is Milt Pappas' short cut to the winner's circle.

"The secret is to swing the bat," the Atlanta hurler said Monday night after stopping Chicago's hot Cubs 6-1 with a six-hitter and clouting a three-run homer in the process.

Pappas' policy has paid off in 14 home runs—four of them game-winners—since he came up as a Baltimore Orioles prodigy 10 years ago. His first 1968 homer, a seventh-inning blast off Jack Lamabe, keyed a five-run burst that snapped the Cubs' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles nipped Pittsburgh 1-0 in 10 innings, St. Louis took Cincinnati 3-2, Houston edged New York 6-5 and Philadelphia beat San Francisco 6-4 in 10 innings.

In the only action on the American League schedule, Baltimore topped the New York Yankees 5-3 in 10 innings and Boston shaded the Chicago White Sox 2-1, also in 10.

The Braves broke a 1-1 tie in the sixth on singles by Joe Torre and Tito Francona, and Bob Johnson's sacrifice fly before Pappas unloaded, Felipe Alou's double and a single by Mike Lum accounted for the fifth run in the inning.

"A pitcher can really help himself with the bat," Pappas explained, "because if he can hit the ball the manager figures in the seventh or eighth innings that the pitcher has as good a chance as somebody coming in new."

The 29-year-old right-hander, who has won three in a row for an 8-7 mark, retired the last 10 Cubs in order after Ernie Banks' 19th homer tied the game 1-1 in the top of the sixth.

The victory lifted the Braves into a second-place tie with Chicago, 14 games behind the runaway Cardinals.

Zolfo Versalles' fourth hit—a run-scoring single with two out in the 10th—sent the Dodgers past the Pirates, who have been shut out three times in succession.

Rookie Jack Billingham, making his first major league start as an emergency replacement for Don Drysdale, who was given the night off because of his daughter's illness, blanked the Pirates on five hits until the ninth and winner Jim Brewer completed a six-hit whitewash.

Loser Steve Blass allowed six hits until the 10th, when Bob Bailey beat out a slow roller, took second on a ground out and scored on Versalles' single to center.

Rookie reliever Wayne Granger rescued Nelson Briles from an eighth-inning jam and Joe Joerner came out of the bullpen to finish in the ninth as the Cardinals withstood Cincinnati's late rally.

The Cards scored a run in each of the first two innings and Mike Shannon's pop fly double sent Orlando Cepeda in from first base in the sixth for a 3-0 edge. But the Reds knocked out Briles, 14-7, on run-scoring singles by Lee May and Johnny Bench in the eighth before Granger got the final out.

Doug Rader, whose throwing error let in the run that gave the Mets a 5-4 lead in the sixth, drilled a two-run double in the seventh—his third hit of the game—to win it for the Astros, John Bateman also doubled

Buffalo in Victory Over Lions

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — "Didn't take long, did it?" Gary McDermott smiled as he said that to Ben Gregory, another rookie running back for the Buffalo Bills.

Both had just played a lengthy and vital role in the Bills' 13-9 exhibition victory over the Detroit Lions Monday night in the season's fourth exhibition game between American and National Football League teams.

What McDermott referred to was the entry of the two youngsters into the Bill's line-up. It happened, unplanned, the second time Buffalo had the ball.

Coach Joe Collier found their presence necessary because veteran running back Keith Lincoln and Wray Carlton were injured the first time each touched the ball. Lincoln suffered possible broken ribs and Carlton injured a knee.

"Sure I was nervous, I was very nervous," said McDermott, the halfback from Tulsa who with Gregory played the rest of the game. "But after I got into the heat of battle I was okay. I wasn't expecting to play that much but I was prepared for it because I know that happens sometimes."

Gregory, a fullback from Nebraska, was equally nervous at first.

"I was shook; I didn't know quite what to expect," he said. "I thought maybe I'd play a quarter, if that much. I didn't even know Carlton was hurt until assistant coach Johnny Mazur told me to get in there real quick."

Gregory scored the Bill's only touchdown on an eight-yard pass from Jack Kemp in the second quarter.

McDermott added the extra point by diving over from the two-yard line and also was the game's busiest runner, carrying 19 times for 50 yards. He also caught two passes while Gregory grabbed four altogether.

Their effort, plus a superlative Bills' defense, gave the AFL its third victory to one for the NFL in their 23-game series. Last year, the first of the inter-league contests, the AFL won only three of 16.

In major developments around the training camps, Kevin Hardy finally got around to reporting to the San Francisco 49ers, a flock of cuts were made and members of the College All-Star team, beaten by the Green Bay Packers 34-17 last Friday, began reporting to their pro teams.

Hardy, a highly regarded, 230-pound rookie lineman prospect, was a key figure in the deal in which former 49er Dave Parks signed with New Orleans.

home two Houston runs. Tony Gonzalez' two-run homer in the 10th boosted the Phils in the 10th inning after the Giants got Juan Marichal off the hook with a two-run ninth-inning rally that tied it 4-4.

Mike McCormick took over for Marichal in the 10th and walked Rich Allen before Gonzalez connected.

Maris Plans to Quit at End of Year

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Roger Maris says he got burned and had the scars to prove it when he left the New York Yankees two years ago.

When the star outfielder announced Monday he is leaving the St. Louis Cardinals after this season, he said he has had "probably two of the most enjoyable years" of his career. And he has a comfortable future to show for it.

In 1961, Maris hit 61 home runs in a 162-game schedule, breaking the 154-game record of 60 set by Babe Ruth in 1927. That marked the high point of his career with the Yankees.

Two years later, he hit only 23 home runs and drove in 53 runs. That marked the beginning of the end for Maris in New York.

While announcing his retirement at a news conference, Maris indicated those last bad years with the Yankees haunted him.

"It's like being burned. You never get rid of the scars," Maris said. "As far as the fans in New York were concerned when I would go back there, I just did my job. I wasn't worried about their reaction."

Maris said he was going to quit after the 1966 season. He'd been plagued by injuries, the fans and had trouble with the press. But his winter trade to the Cardinals in 1966 for third baseman Charley Smith almost forced him to play another year, Maris indicated.

"I didn't like how the trade came about," the two-time American League Most Valuable Player confessed. "I told New York I was going to retire, and they made the trade announcement before I had a chance to open my mouth. And I didn't want the writers to jump on me by saying I retired because of the trade."

"So I decided to play another year," Maris added, "and I liked it so well I decided to play another year. It's a pleasure playing where people like you."

Maris, 33, was paid an estimated $70,000 for each of his two years with the Cardinals. And his future was assured when President August A. Busch Jr. of the Cardinals awarded Maris a beer distributorship in his new home town of Gainesville, Fla.

The 12-year veteran came up to the major leagues with the Cleveland Indians. He played for the former Kansas City Athletics before moving on to the Yankees. He was the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1960 and 1961. He also hit a home run his first time up in a World Series game.

In that record-breaking 1961 season, he hit seven home runs in six consecutive games and hit four home runs in a double header. The year before he led the American League in slugging percentage with a .581 mark.

Though no longer the super star he was with the Yankees, Maris showed well in the 1967 World Series for the Cardinals. He led the Cardinals with seven runs batted in and hit .385 in the seven games.

Maris said he decided to make the announcement before the end of the season because "I did not really care to be bothered by the press after the season."

Harris Will Fight With Griffith

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gypsy Joe Harris, young and unbeaten, meets Emile Griffith, experienced and seven years older, in a scheduled 12-round fight tonight important to the immediate future of both middleweight title contenders.

The 22-year-old Harris is a slight favorite in his native Philadelphia over the 29-year-old Griffith of New York, who has been a welterweight champion three times and middleweight king twice.

Promoter Herman Taylor expects a crowd of better than 12,000 and a gate in excess of $100,000 for the bout at the 17,000-seat Spectrum. He claims he has been promised a fight for the winner with middleweight champion Nino Benevenuti.

Powell Keeps Orioles in Flag Race

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Richert and Boog Powell almost waited too long to zero in on home plate, but both found the range in time to keep Baltimore on course in the American League pennant race.

Richert, bothered by wildness after a 15-day stay in the Army, almost wild pitched the winning run home in the ninth inning before bringing his pitches under control.

That gave Powell another chance after leaving seven runners on base in four previous times at bat, and the big first baseman took advantage by driving himself home with a 10th inning homer.

Between them—Richert's pitching and Powell's power—the Orioles grabbed a 5-3 victory over the New York Yankees Monday night and closed within 5½ games of the league-leading Detroit Tigers.

Boston tripped the Chicago White Sox 2-1 in 10 innings in the only other contest.

In the National League, Philadelphia whipped San Francisco 6-4 in 10 innings in the afternoon, and at night, Atlanta downed the Chicago Cubs 6-1, St. Louis nudged Cincinnati 3-2, Houston edged the New York Mets 6-5 and Los Angeles slipped by Pittsburgh 1-0 in 10 innings.

Richert, who had walked only three men in 37 1-3 innings, entered a 3-3 game with two on and two out in the ninth inning and walked Jake Gibbs to load the bases. His first pitch to Horace Clark was so high it took a leaping catch by catcher Andy Etchebarren to save a wild pitch.

"Etchebarren saved the game on that play," said Baltimore manager Earl Weaver. That pitch brought Weaver to the mound.

"I told him (Richert) not to overthrow, not to strain. That's what he did on that pitch, tried to get too much on it."

Richert then got Clarke to pop up. "You can't take your place on the roster and not be ready to pitch," said Richert, who was placed back on the active list before the game.

With another chance, Powell opened the 10th for the Orioles with his 20th homer and Brooks Robinson followed with his 12th, both against loser Dooley Womack, 2-6.

Richert, 3-2, then retired the side in order in the Yankees' 10th for Baltimore's sixth victory in seven games.

Boston won for the fifth time in sixth outings when Russ Gibson stroked a run-scoring single in the 10th off Bob Locker after Chicago starter Tommy John walked George Scott and Jerry Adair sacrificed.

John, 7-5, had allowed only four hits, but one of them was Ken Harrelson's 28th homer in the eighth inning.

The White Sox got their run in the sixth when Tom McCraw and Tommy Davis smacked doubles off Dave Morehead, but Bill Landis, 3-2, relieved in the seventh and blanked Chicago the rest of the way.

"I had no idea he was this kind of a hitter," continued Williams. "He didn't show much last year when we got him, although his hitting won two games for us and we won the pennant by only one game."

"Triple Crown?" mused Harrelson as he was getting into an outfit beyond description. "If it happens to come, that's great. But the important thing is to win games and you can't win ball games if you're thinking of the Triple Crown."

Harrelson Doing Well With Bosox

by JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — For a guy who was nothing more than trade bait last spring, Ken Harrelson is doing right well with the Boston Red Sox. So well that the sartorial wonder of baseball just might steal the American League's Triple Crown.

Harrelson, whose outlandish outfits make others blink, has Red Sox opponents blinking with his blazing bat.

He slugged his 28th homer of the year Monday night to pull Boston into a seventh-inning tie with Chicago which enabled the Red Sox to come off with a 10-inning, 2-1 victory on Russ Gibson's run-scoring single.

Harrelson also picked up a single and took over the American League lead with a .298 batting average. His 91 runs batted in give him 14 RBI edge over Frank Howard of Washington and he now trails Howard by only three homers for the league lead.

"I don't know what makes him tick," said Boston Manager Dick Williams, "and I don't care as long as he keeps it up. He's been a real life saver for a guy who didn't figure to make the team last spring."

Harrelson was given his walking papers by Charles O. Finley and the Kansas City A's last summer.

Boston picked him up as pennant insurance. Last spring it appeared Tony Conigliaro had overcome a beaming which had threatened his career. With Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith to go along with Conigliaro, that took care of the Boston outfield.

George Scott, at first base, had batted over .300 and looked like a coming super star. It seemed there was no room for Harrelson.

"He came up to me and said 'I don't think I can make this club,'" said Williams. "I told him we wouldn't give him away for nothing but nobody came up with a good offer. It was the best move we made."

"We soon found out Conigliaro couldn't play because of the eye injury and Scott got off to a bad start. I put Harrelson in and there's no way I can get him out."

"I had no idea he was this kind of a hitter," continued Williams. "He didn't show much last year when we got him, although his hitting won two games for us and we won the pennant by only one game."

"Triple Crown?" mused Harrelson as he was getting into an outfit beyond description. "If it happens to come, that's great. But the important thing is to win games and you can't win ball games if you're thinking of the Triple Crown."

AFL East: Boston Patriots

PROSPECTUS—Life's little realities caught up to the Patriots in '67. They flapped to their worst season in short history. Ergo, a minor housecleaning, starting with unloading of old Babe Parilli. Now coach Mike Holovak says, "We'll have a younger club with speed." Problem: What good's speed without direction? PREDICTION—4th in East.

OFFENSE

PASSING—Showed how much confidence they have in young Don Trull as Parilli's successor by getting bench-warmer Mike Taliaferro (Jets). Neither has proven he can lead T-party. Rating—C—

RECEIVING—Switch of Larry Garra to flanker should finally unseat slow, old Gino Cappelletti. Keep looking for one big, healthy season from split end Artie Graham. Rookie Aaron Marsh might stimulate all of them. Holdover Jim Whalen has lock on tight end. Rating—B—

RUNNING—Perennial search for Jim Nance running mate turns Gene Thomas, ex-KC, or R. C. Gamble, draftee. Don't hold your breath. Nance will still drag tacklers 90 per cent of time and lead league again. Rating—B+—

LINE—Wanted to make room for Justin Canale at guard, so Capt. Charley Long's been shifted to tackle to battle it out with Don Oakes. No complaints at all about quality of center Jan Norris, guard Len St. Jean, tackle Tom Neville. Plenty about what's behind them. Rating—B—

DEFENSE

LINE—Broke up old gang here, too, with retirement of vet end Dee, original Patriot. If All-American Dennis Byrd doesn't succeed him, Holovak'll go fishing. Larry Eisenhauer holds forth again on other flank. Tackles Jim Hunt, Houston Antwine look like portable kegs, manage to roll in on passer. Rating—B—

LINEBACKING—Infirmary wiped out Tommy Addison, too, and they'll miss his type of leadership. Lots of fire in middle with Nick Buoniconti, but he'll have to fight for rating as AFL No. 1. Ed Philpott, last year's surprise, and Doug Satcher look O.K. on corners. Rating—B—

SECONDARY—Year of trial by error should find John Charles, Leroy Mitchell rock steady on corners—if Charles holds off job challenge by Jay Cunningham. Safety spots are something else entirely Billy Johnson shows flare under pressure. Chance rookie Jim Smithberger will make impact. Rating—B—

KICKING—Nothing but the best for point production from Gino Cappelletti, but Terry Swanson has room for improvement as punter. Rating—B+— foresees a dog fight. "I don't think they (Dallas) have the extreme edge everybody gives them," says Kuharich.

The Eagles' coach—he's also general manager—feels that if his team can shore the defense, make fewer glaring mistakes on offense and keep healthy it will be a strong contender against anyone, including the opener against the pro champion Packers at Green Bay, Wis.

Haymond, a quick-moving defensive back, is expected to team at the wings with Al Nelson, a solid performer who missed all of last season after breaking an arm in an exhibition game.

The veteran Nate Ramsay is the short safety with Joe Scarpati, one of the best free safeties in the league, roaming deep.

Kuharich is confident that if his front four will keep the opposing passer busy, this secondary will intercept a lot of passes.

The front four is Kuharich's biggest concern. The Eagles dumped the passer only 24 times in 1967.

Defense Is Main Object of Eagles

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

READING, Pa. (AP) — The accent in the training camp of the Philadelphia Eagles is on DEFENSE.

Coach Joe Kuharich estimates he needs a 20 to 30 per cent increase in the efficiency of his defensive unit if the Eagles are to better their 6-7-1 second-place finish of 1967 in the National Football League's Capitol Division.

"The whole theme of operation here is to increase the over-all efficiency of the defense," says Kuharich as he runs his squad through daily drills at Albright College in Eastern Pennsylvania.

"If we can get 20 to 30 per cent improvement it could be the difference in three or four wins," he asserted.

The Eagles' offseason trading and draft choices were predicated on improving a defense which allowed 409 points, second worst in the 16-team circuit.

Star running back Timmy Brown was dealt to Baltimore for defensive wing Alvin Haymond. Two of the first three draft picks were standout defensive stars from the nation's No. 1 team, Southern California.

Kuharich took Tim Roosovich, a 245-pound defensive end, and Adrian Young, 225-pound line-backer, from the national champion Trojans. Both have been in the All-Star camp, where reports indicate they will be standout pros.

One Time Millionaire Dies Broke

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Arom G. Der Zakarian once was a multimillionaire who cornered the soybean market. When he died he was on the county welfare rolls.

Der Zakarian, 65, corner the nation's soybean market in 1956 and 1957 and continued to do well until last year when the soybean market failed because of a bumper crop.

A stock broker associate said he then switched to frozen pork bellies—bacon—and when this market folded he "went under."

Der Zakarian was killed Friday when struck by a pickup truck on his way to work as a consultant to some investors. Funeral services were held Monday.

His first venture came in 1950 when he put a few thousand dollars into soybean futures and made a 90 per cent profit in two weeks.

But this vanished in other deals and Der Zakarian developed his own system to solve the intricacies of the soybean market.

Then came his coup in 1956 when he made $1 million for himself and several associates. In 1957 he made $500,000 in one day when he sold off two million bushels of soybeans.

His good fortune continued. He joined the Chicago Board of Trade and had a ticker tape in his home.

Then came the market failures of 1967 and 1968.

He moved in with a sister in Oakland and applied to the Welfare Department for $70 monthly benefits under the Old Age Security Assistance Program.

Some Support for McCarthy in Delegation

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Some supporters of Sen. Eugene McCarthy will be in Arkansas' delegation to the Democratic National Convention, but Vice President Humphrey apparently will secure all 33 delegate votes in his bid for the presidency.

Leon B. Catlett of Little Rock, state Democratic party chairman, said the delegation would vote under the unit rule barring a caucus decision to vote otherwise.

The rule gives all the state's votes to the candidate favored by a majority. Humphrey has released any delegations from such commitments to him, but Catlett said he anticipated that the Arkansas delegation would stand by the state Democratic Committee's decision to abide by the rule.

An Associated Press poll of delegates shows that McCarthy's strength is slight while 21 delegates express support for Humphrey and two others lean toward him. Only one delegate expressed support for McCarthy and two others indicated they were leaning toward the Minnesota senator.

The bulk of the 63-member delegation indicated it was neither committed nor leaning toward either candidate.

State Group Looking to 2nd Ballot

By BILL NEIKIRK

Associated Press Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Arkansas delegation to the Republican National Convention will look ahead to the second presidential ballot, if there is one, when it caucuses today to take a poll of delegate preferences.

Pledged to support Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller as a favorite son candidate on the first ballot, the delegates will also iron out whether they will honor Rockefeller's request to stay with him through the second ballot.

Odell Pollard of Searcy said he thought 15 or 16 of the 18 delegates would go along with Rockefeller's request. Travis Beeson of Camden, the delegation's spokesman for Richard M. Nixon, said he would refuse to honor it.

"It would have to be by unanimous agreement," said Pollard, chairman of the delegation.

He estimated that after Winthrop Rockefeller relinquishes his favorite son role, from 12 to 13 votes would go for New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and "the others will be split between Mr. Nixon and Mr. (Ronald) Reagan."

Pollard said the reason for the favorite son role through two ballots is "because after the second ballot, delegates from states which had primaries will be free to express their opinion."

Beeson contends that more than half the delegation favors Nixon for the nomination. Mrs. Carolyn Rush of Pine Bluff said she thought the vote would be divided equally between Nixon and the New York governor.

Some of the Arkansas delegates will meet with Nixon today at the former vice president's headquarters. A number of other Southern delegates will accompany them.

Pollard said there are no plans for the Arkansas delegation to meet with the other candidates.

"We met with Reagan and Rockefeller prior to the convention and most of the delegates have already talked with Mr. Nixon," he said.

Johnson's Hospital Visit Routine

By FRANK CORMIER

Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson's visit to the hospital today is described by his personal doctor as "in keeping with the policy" of an annual physical checkup.

The Texas White House pictured the President's admission to Brooke Army Medical Center as routine although it did not use that word in the official announcement and neither did the presidential doctor, Vice Adm. George G. Burkley.

Johnson and his wife, who is taking the opportunity to also have a checkup, may stay overnight at the hospital, a quick, 75-mile helicopter ride from their Johnson City ranch.

Press secretary George Christian said Monday that as far as he knows the President's health is normal.

"Yes," was the answer he gave to a specific question on the point.

Christian announced Johnson's intention to enter the hospital at a briefing, reading a formal statement by Burkley.

The President usually has his annual checkup at the White House which has extensive facilities.

With Congress in recess, however, and the Republicans holding their presidential nomi-

Plane Lands on Top of Truck

DUMAS, Tex. (AP) — A crop duster landed his airplane on top of a moving pickup truck Monday, but neither the pilot nor the driver was injured.

The pilot, Harold Eugene Ellis, had been spraying in a field about eight miles northwest of Dumas in the Texas panhandle. Ellis told police he swooped low over the moving truck driven by his partner, Clyde Barker, to signal him the job was over.

A downdraft caught his plane, Ellis said, and the craft pancaked onto the top of the truck.

One of the plane's wheels went through the rear window of the pickup and its propeller, chopped up the truck's radiator. The truck veered into a field and came to rest with the plane still perched on top.

ally good health since a massive heart attack in 1955.

Besides the gall bladder operation, he has twice been confined to the Bethesda hospital while President.

In January 1965 he was bedridden for what was described as a heavy cold and laryngitis. In November 1966 he had a non-malignant polyp removed from his throat and repairs done to the incision from his gall bladder operation.

Christian noted Burkley customarily issues a public report on the president's health at about the time of Johnson's birthday. Johnson will be 60, Aug. 27.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Surgery is Best Bet In Bronchiectasis Cure

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—I recently had a lobe of my lung removed because of bronchiectasis. Why is surgery the only way it can be treated? What is the normal recovery period following lung surgery? How long should the discomfort from all those cut nerves last? What is the best treatment for this?

A—In bronchiectasis, the small terminal bronchi or air passages become dilated. This is always associated with chronic bronchial infection. Although some of the infectious matter can be removed by gravity (postural drainage), what stays behind keeps the infection going. Antibiotics will not cure it, so surgery is your best bet.

Fortunately, however, there are usually other ways—besides the claimant's own testimony—to establish that he does have pain. Most persuasive is medical evidence. Although a doctor cannot actually feel a patient's pain, he can find out a great deal through his instruments. For example: Pain may speed the patient's pulse. It may affect his blood pressure, his metabolism, and his respiration. It may even put extra zigzags into his electrocardiogram. Moreover, a doctor can learn much simply by watching a patient's expression. As one judge put it:

"There are symptoms of pain that write their story on one's countenance as clearly as lightning scribbles in the sky."

Will a court listen also to the non-scientific observations of a layman? Generally yes, because these too may be revealing.

Thus, in one case, an accident victim's pain was proven through the testimony of a fellow patient in his hospital room. The patient vividly recalled the victim's moans, groans, and weeping.

Of course, any method of proving that pain is present may also be used to prove that it is absent. Both instruments and observation, both doctor and layman may—in proper circumstances—help to expose false complaints.

One woman, claiming injury in a bus accident, said she had severe pains in her back. But a doctor noticed that when he was touching that area, she winced far too much in some places and far too little in others.

Result: she collected nothing at all.

Czech Papers Win Moore Freedom

By PETER REHAK

Associated Press Writer
PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovakia's new press freedom is settling down at a level that compares favorably with those Western countries where restrictions on news are at a minimum.

Editors use more self-restraint than in the first few months after censorship was lifted, but their main concern is the national interest.

The free press has been a chief target of Czechoslovakia's Communist critics. Revival of censorship was one of the chief demands of the Warsaw letter signed by the Communist parties of the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Bulgaria and Hungary.

The Czechoslovak party's new leaders rejected this and have made plain that censorship was not part of the deal in the propaganda truce agreed to at their meeting in Bratislava Saturday with the signers of the Warsaw letter.

"From our point of view, the halt in polemics in no way reduces the duty of the newspaperman to inform his readers broadly and truthfully," said the youth newspaper Mlada Fronta after the Bratislava meeting.

"We believe that Czechoslovak newspapermen are mature enough to avoid all the cheap invectives and provocations which filled the press of the five (Warsaw letter signers)."

The new leaders in Prague who ousted Antonin Novotny from his post of party chairman in January maintain that the country can have a free press and communism too.

The press helped the new leaders consolidate their position by publicizing the Stalinism of Novotny and his conservative associates. The papers were instrumental in his ouster from the presidency of the country in March, when censorship was officially removed.

The only formal restriction on editors now is a 35-page list of

Humphrey, McCarthy to Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy camps have agreed to the format for a national television debate the week before the Democratic National Convention.

Aides to both the Democratic presidential contenders said Monday the hour-long confrontation would be divided into three segments—on foreign affairs, domestic problems and the candidates' concepts of the presidency.

Humphrey's people said in Minneapolis the debate will be either Aug. 23 or 24. But the McCarthy camp, which had proposed three separate debates beginning as early as July 21, said it would be sometime during the week before the convention begins Aug. 26.

"There's fairly substantial agreement but the dates aren't all that certain," said Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager.

Clark said the agreement provides for direct exchange between the two candidates on issues. Humphrey aides said all three major networks have been notified of the tentative agreement.

In another development in the Democratic race, it was learned Monday a key McCarthy aide has been relegated to a minor role after a clash with the candidate over who would manage his strategy at the convention.

Washington attorney Thomas J. Finney refused to comment on the reasons and said he had not resigned but acknowledged he is "a good deal less active than I was two weeks ago."

"Let's just say, in the terminology of the McCarthy campaign, that I am on retreat," Finney said.

Other sources said Finney had demanded more control over the convention operation and had been soundly rebuffed by McCarthy. The convention strategy will be managed by former Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell.

With the Republican National Convention dominating politics, the Democratic candidates planned no campaigning until later in the week.

McCarthy has scheduled a rally in Columbus, Ohio, Wednesday and Humphrey leaves his Waverly, Minn., home Friday for a trip to Corpus Christi, Tex.

Third party presidential candidate George C. Wallace, continuing his campaign, was in Houston, Tex., for a fund-raising dinner and a rally tonight in Delmar Stadium.

economic and other official secrets that has been considerably pruned under pressure from journalists.

The list, or some version of it, will become part of a new press law that Parliament is to pass later this year. It may also be coupled with new libel legislation. The present law provides a maximum fine of 400 crowns—$25—and does not permit damage suits.

Most editors are members of the Communist party or other organizations in the Communist-led National Front. From time to time, they are asked by the party leadership not to stress particular stories or to write about particular subjects.

Direct attacks against Soviet leaders will probably fall in this category following the Bratislava meeting.

GOP to Adopt a Flexible Platform

By EDMOND LEBRETON
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The platform the Republican National Convention is expected to adopt tonight would put the GOP on record for a flexible policy to meet the issues of war, poverty, riots and crime—problems of main concern to today's voters.

It is this attitude, rather than stern insistence on party principles, that contrasts sharply with the document tailored to Barry Goldwater's uncompromising—and unsuccessful—campaign four years ago.

The 1968 statement, submitted to the convention by its Resolutions Committee, endorses negotiations to end the Vietnam war, while looking to a progressive takeover of the fighting by South Vietnamese forces. In 1964, the party promised to "move decisively to assure victory."

On poverty and urban problems, the current statement calls for a substantial role for private industry. But it does not blink at proposals for substantial use of federal funds.

It proudly claims credit for Republicans in the development of such programs as a federal interest subsidy to help the poor buy homes and federal backing of efforts to develop ghetto-owned businesses.

"We will not tolerate violence" in the cities, the 1968 platform says, and it calls for a vigorous drive under new leadership against organized crime. But it also promises "measures to alleviate and remove the frustrations that contribute to riots" and "a relentless attack on economic and social injustices."

In 1964 riots and crime were not a comparable issue and the platform had no direct reference to them.

The 1968 statement urges revision of welfare programs "to liberate the poor from the debilitating dependence which erodes self-respect." The 1964 statement emphasized first reliance on "the individual's right and capacity to advance his own economic well-being."

The GOP is still sounding this year its constant theme that federal spending must be brought under control. But it did not repeat the earlier flat pledge of a $5 billion spending cut, and a prompt reduction of the federal debt.

The Goldwater campaign section on foreign affairs declared the nation's leadership "must be judged by . . . the stand it takes toward communism."

The statement going to the convention this year specifies that "nations hostile to this country will receive no assistance from the United States." But it emphasizes consultation with other nations, regional approaches to defense and economic development and peaceful adjustment of disputes.

In short, the 1968 platform reflects success by candidates and party elements reaching for a middle ground where they think most voters could feel at home.

It specifically shows the effect of years of work by a group of moderate Republican House members who organized task forces to work out affirmative positions and of the Coordinating Committee that sought a broad consensus throughout the party.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Health Department reported Monday that rabies has reached epidemic proportions in Arkansas' skunk population. Dr. Harvie R. Switch May Have Caused Train Wreck

By F. T. MacFEELEY
Associated Press Writer
WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP)

— A Seaboard Coast Line spokesman says the head-on crash of two Silver Meteor passenger trains Monday could have been due to "a faulty switch or a dispatching error." His statement added that "we just don't know. It may take intensive investigation."

Railroad officials said the line uses a centralized traffic system under which a single dispatcher manipulates all movement over several hundred miles of track. All switching is done automatically.

The tourist-jammed passenger trains collided in an orange grove, strewn wreckage for hundreds of yards and sending 125 persons to hospitals. Twenty-seven of the injured were admitted for treatment and one was critically hurt. The others were given first aid and released.

Harold Walters, a fireman on the southbound train, said his engine was stopped on the main line, waiting for the sister train to switch to a siding.

"We were stopped right where we normally meet the northbound," said Walters.

Trooper J. L. Smith of the Florida Highway Patrol said he heard the crash from four miles away. When he arrived he said his first thought "was to try to get the injured people out, but that was pretty much of a job because there were so many people in hysterics."

"We started laying them up along the embankment next to the tracks. We put as many into each ambulance as we could. Some of them rode sitting up next to the stretchers," the trooper said.

Some of the victims were helped into the orange groves along the track. The leaves shaded them from the broiling Florida sun—the attraction that brought many of the passengers to the state for vacations.

Greasy, blackened debris was scattered along the railroad right of way, long lengths of track were twisted. Fifteen out of the combined 36 cars plunged off the tracks, gouging deep furrows in the earth.

Shattered glass, ripped luggage, pieces of train seats and other debris were scattered. An odor of liquor hung in the air around a partially crumpled club car.

Adolph J. Thomas, a waiter in the front dining car of the northbound train and a 30-year railroad veteran, was carrying a tray of food when he heard the emergency air brakes hiss. He said he knew what was coming.

"I got back into a corner and braced myself with the tray still in my hand. After we hit the tray was gone," he said later. "This was hell. To think that steel would bend that way!"

Engineer H. S. Moran and fireman Walters saw the northbound train headed at them and scrambled away from the train.

Walters fell, but kept crawling. "All I could think of was that something was going to catch up with me before I got out of the way," Walters said. A derailing engine and baggage car pushed a mound of dirt up in front of him. He credits that with saving his life.

Changed Plea to Guilty

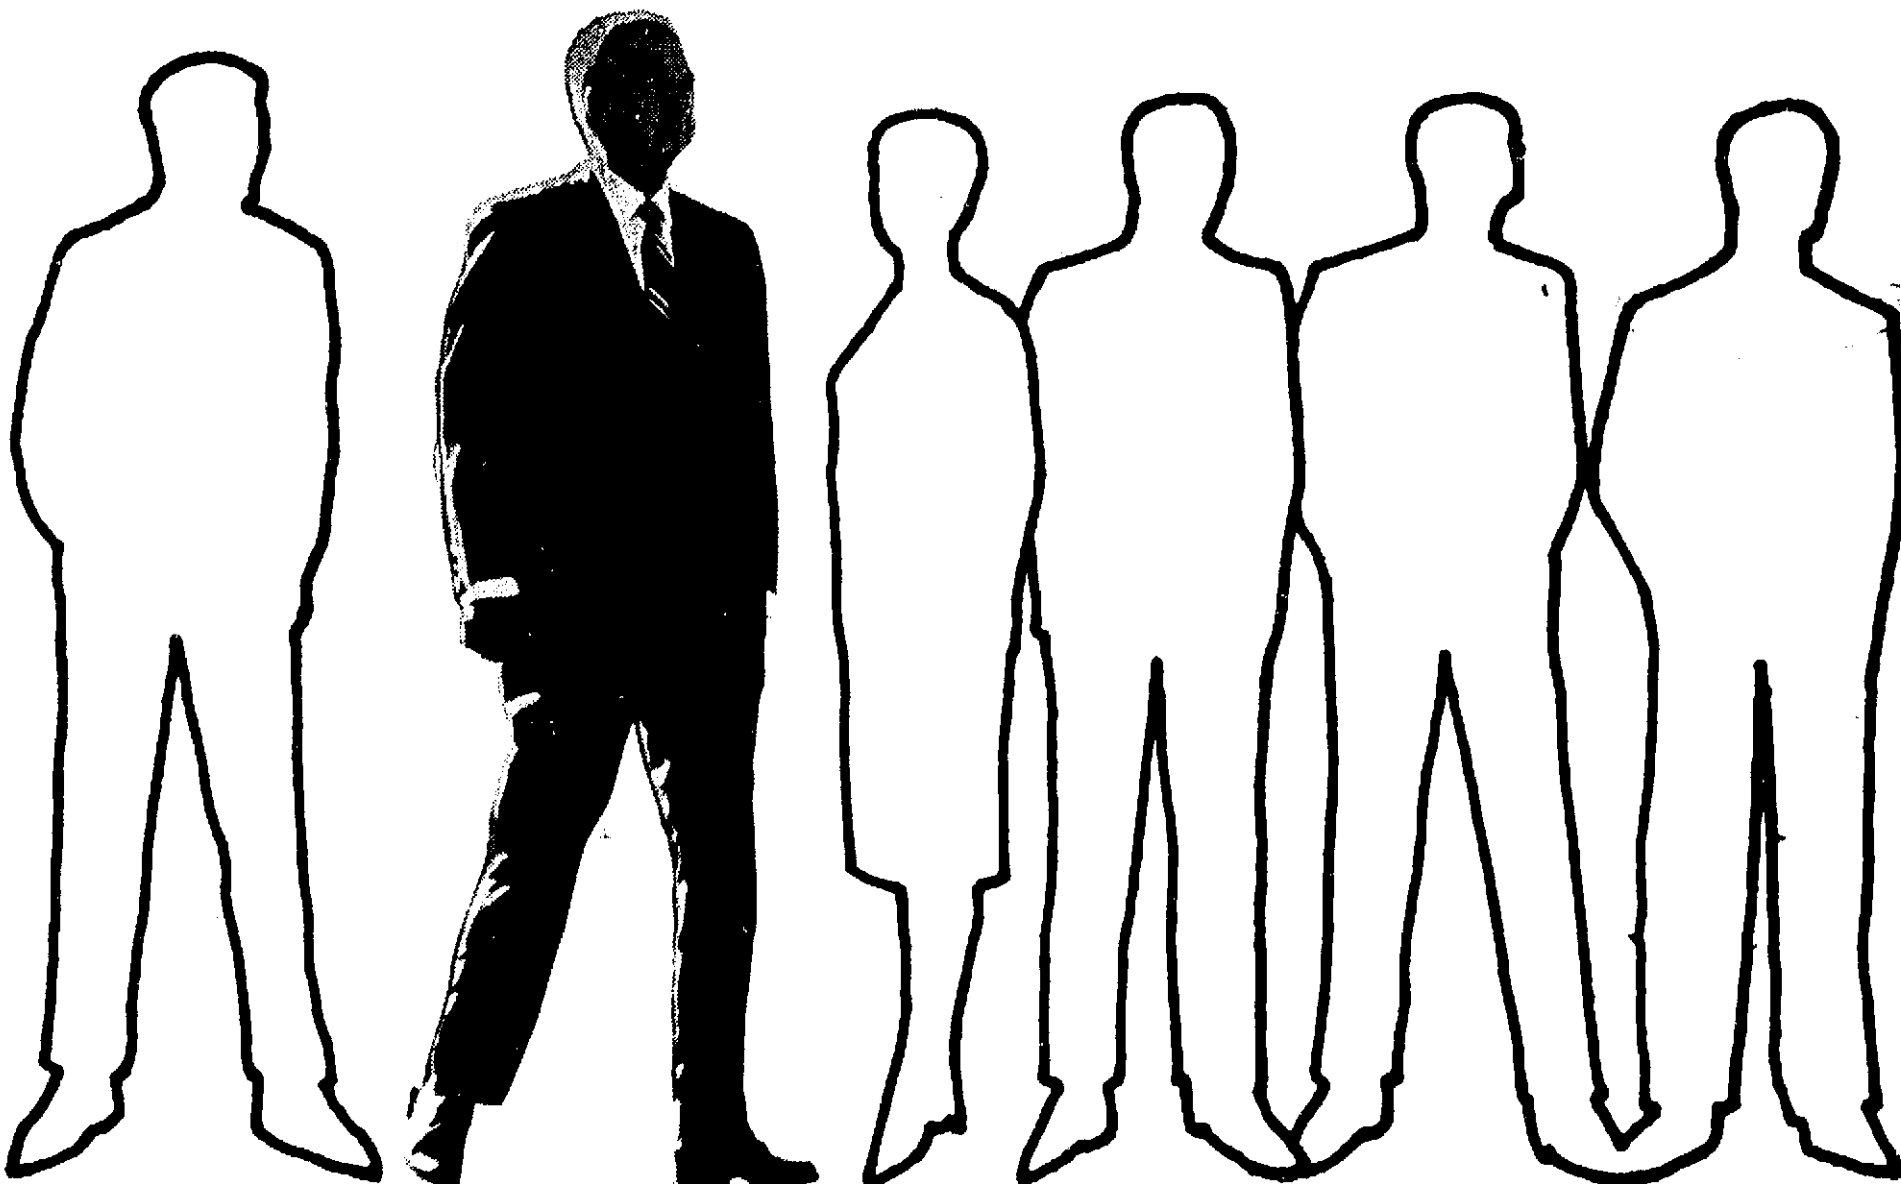

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "How do you plead?" the judge asked Ernest Dagley, 42, charged with gambling at a crap game.

"Not guilty," replied Dagley. Then he put his hand in a pocket and two dice fell to the floor.

"Your point is six," quipped a policeman. Recovering his dice and his dignity, Dagley said, "You honor, I wish to change my plea. To guilty."

He was fined $35 Monday in Municipal Court.
